Mostly Me:

Mostly Me! Harcourt School Publishers Staff,1995-01-01 Mostly Me Collin Hall,2023-05-24 Beautifully written and illustrated charming and uplifting I wish I had this book growing up Mostly Me is a simple yet profound story of who we are and the questions we re so often asked and ask ourselves told in a whimsical and memorable way Joling Kent CBS News correspondent A little character explores the joys and challenges of being both blue and green in this affirming and thoughtful story about being mixed race This uplifting rhyming picture book follows a blue green narrator on a journey of self discovery In a world where everyone comes in different shapes colors and sizes this character is often asked to fit into one color or choose between two Readers follow along as it navigates questions like Who am I Where do I belong and will discover the most empowering answer of all I m mostly me Inspired by author Collin Hall s desire to provide his daughters with a foundational approach to their multi racial identities as well as his own wish for a book on the topic when he was a child Mostly Me is a powerful message to anyone who has ever felt in between Essentials of Organizational Behavior

Harcourt School Publishers Staff,Roger C. Farr,Dorothy S. Strickland,Harcourt Brace Jovanovich,1993-01-01 Twelve thematic units offer a full year of literary exploration for kindergarten readers Understanding Social Signals: How Do We Recognize the Intentions of Others? Sebastian Loth,Jan P. De Ruiter,2016-05-30 Powerful and economic sensors such as high definition cameras and corresponding recognition software have become readily available e g for face and motion recognition However designing user interfaces for robots phones and computers that facilitate a seamless intuitive and apparently effortless communication as between humans is still highly challenging This has shifted the focus from developing ever faster and higher resolution sensors to interpreting available sensor data for understanding social signals and recognising users intentions Psychologists Ethnologists Linguists and Sociologists have investigated social behaviour in human human interaction But their findings are rarely applied in the human robot interaction domain Instead robot designers tend to rely on either proof of concept or machine learning based methods In proving the concept developers effectively demonstrate that users are able to adapt to robots deployed in the public space Typically an initial period of collecting human robot interaction data is used for identifying frequently occurring problems These are then addressed by adjusting the interaction policies on the basis of the collected data However the updated policies are strongly biased by the initial design of the robot and might not reflect natural spontaneous user behaviour In the machine learning approach learning algorithms are used for finding a mapping between the sensor data space and a hypothesised or estimated set of intentions However this brute force approach ignores the possibility that some signals or modalities are superfluous or even disruptive in intention recognition

Furthermore this method is very sensitive to peculiarities of the training data In sum both methods cannot reliably support natural interaction as they crucially depend on an accurate model of human intention recognition Therefore approaches to social robotics from engineers and computer scientists urgently have to be informed by studies of intention recognition in natural human human communication Combining the investigation of natural human behaviour and the design of computer and robot interfaces can significantly improve the usability of modern technology For example robots will be easier to use by a broad public if they can interpret the social signals that users spontaneously produce for conveying their intentions anyway By correctly identifying and even anticipating the user s intention the user will perceive that the system truly understands her his needs Vice versa if a robot produces socially appropriate signals it will be easier for its users to understand the robot s intentions Furthermore studying natural behaviour as a basis for controlling robots and other devices results in greater robustness responsiveness and approachability Thus we welcome submissions that a investigate how relevant social signals can be identified in human behaviour b investigate the meaning of social signals in a specific context or task c identify the minimal set of intentions for describing a context or task d demonstrate how insights from the analysis of social behaviour can improve a robot s capabilities or e demonstrate how a robot can make itself more understandable to the user by producing more human like social signals
