Scythe and the City Christian Henriot, 2016-05-18 The issue of death has loomed large in Chinese cities in the modern era Throughout the Republican period Shanghai swallowed up lives by the thousands Exposed bodies strewn around in public spaces were a threat to social order as well as to public health In a place where every group had its own beliefs and set of death and funeral practices how did they adapt to a modern urbanized environment How did the interactions of social organizations and state authorities manage these new ways of thinking and acting Recent historiography has almost completely ignored the ways in which death created such immense social change in China Now Scythe and the City corrects this problem Christian Henriot's pioneering and original study of Shanghai between 1865 and 1965 offers new insights into this crucial aspect of modern society in a global commercial hub and guides readers through this tumultuous era that radically redefined the Chinese relationship with death

A Sense of the City Gala Maria Follaco, 2017-10-17 In A Sense of the City Gala Maria Follaco examines Nagai Kaf's 1879-1959 literary construction of urban spatialities from late Meiji through the early Sh wa period She argues that Kaf's urban critique was based on his awareness of the cultural sedimentation of the cityscape and of the complex relationship that it bore with the historical framework of modern Japan With the overall aim to define Kaf's position within pre war Japanese literature Follaco touches upon key issues such as memory class difference and language ideologies draws connections between his sojourn abroad and strategies of mapping the city of Tokyo in his literature and takes into account works previously understudied including his biography of Washizu Kid and his photographs

Urbanizing China in War and Peace Toby Lincoln, 2015-05-31 Urbanizing China in War and Peace rewrites the history of rural urban relations in the first half of the twentieth century by arguing that urbanization is a total societal transformation and as important a factor as revolution nationalism or modernity in the history of modern China Linking the global and the local in space and time China's urbanization was not only driven by industrial capitalism and the expansion of the state but also shaped how these forces influenced daily life in the city and the countryside Although the conflict that beset China after the Japanese invasion in 1937 affected the development of cities towns and villages it did not derail previous changes To truly understand how China has emerged as the world's largest urban society we must consider such continuities across the first half of the twentieth century during periods of war as well as peace The book focuses on Wuxi a city that lies a hundred miles to the west of Shanghai In the early twentieth century local industrialists were responsible for it quickly becoming the largest industrial city in China outside treaty ports They built factories roads and other infrastructure outside the old city walls and in surrounding towns and villages Chapters examine the county's transformation as recorded in guidebooks and travel magazines of the time and the role of the state in the early 1920s and into the Nanjing Decade when new administrative laws led to the continued expansion of the city under both municipal and county officials They explore the revival of the silk industry during the Japanese occupation and the industry's role in driving urbanization as well as efforts by Chinese leaders to carry out prewar development plans despite lockdowns and qingxiang clean the countryside campaigns In the midst of the barbed wire and watch towers plans to shape the built environment in Wuxi County and the region as a whole persisted and were carried out Ambitious and well researched Urbanizing China in War and Peace will appeal to scholars and students of Chinese urban history the Anti Japanese War of Resistance and the Republican period Its engagement with issues of urbanization in general will interest urban historians of other times and places

Improvised City Cole Roskam, 2019-03-15 For nearly one hundred years Shanghai was an international treaty port in which the extraterritorial rights of foreign governments shaped both architecture and infrastructure and it merits examination as one of the most complex and influential urban environments of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Improvised City illuminates the interplay between the city's commercial nature and the architectural forms and practices designed to manage it in Shanghai's three municipalities the International Settlement the French Concession and the Chinese city This book probes the relationship between architecture and extraterritoriality in ways that challenge standard narratives of Shanghai's built environment which are dominated by stylistic analyses of major landmarks Instead by considering a wider range of town halls post offices municipal offices war memorials water works and consulates Cole Roskam traces the cultural economic political and spatial negotiations that shaped Shanghai's growth Improvised City repositions Shanghai within architectural and urban transformations that reshaped the world over the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries It responds to growing academic interest in the history of modern and contemporary Chinese architecture and urbanism the ongoing shifting relationship between sovereignty and space and the variegated forms of urban exceptionality such as special economic zones tax free trading spheres and commercial enclaves that continue to shape cities

Chinese Art Maxwell K. Hearn, Judith G. Smith, Metropolitan Museum of Art (New York, N.Y.), 2001 China's entry into the modern era was shaped by unprecedented internal turmoil and external pressures which brought a forceful end to two millennia of imperial rule and cultural insularity The essays in this volume offer a variety of perspectives on the impact of the West on indigenous literature architecture painting and calligraphy during this period ca 1860-1980 This book is published in conjunction with the exhibition Nineteenth and Twentieth Century Chinese Paintings from the Robert H.
