

An aerial photograph of a rural landscape. In the upper left, there is a small building with a chimney, possibly a farm or a small village. The landscape is dominated by large, open fields with visible plowing patterns. A line of trees runs horizontally across the middle of the image. In the lower right, there is a small, dark, rectangular structure, possibly a stone building or a monument. The overall tone is sepia or brownish, suggesting an old photograph.

Lower Paleolithic Site At Hoxne England:

The Lower Paleolithic Site at Hoxne, England Ronald Singer, Bruce G. Gladfelter, John Wymer, 1993 At the edge of the small Suffolk village of Hoxne lies what is arguably the single most important Middle Pleistocene archaeological site in Europe Here the deposits contain not only prehistoric artifacts but also extraordinary records of fossil flora and fauna making Hoxne one of the few paleolithic sites where early hominid materials can be found with other types of information in their primary contexts Much controversy has surrounded the interpretation of these prehistoric materials and their stratigraphic position since John Frere published the first account of the site in 1797 Seeking to resolve some of the disputes a team from the University of Chicago began in 1971 the most extensive series of excavations yet undertaken This profusely illustrated volume presents the results of the team's five summers of excavations which ended in 1978 and includes contributions by twelve specialists who represent many branches of Quaternary science Although some uncertainty remains on various minor questions this will stand for many years to come as the definitive study of Hoxne's archaeological and geochronological significance Ronald Singer is the Robert R Bensley Professor in the Departments of Anatomy and Anthropology at the University of Chicago Bruce G Gladfelter is associate professor in the Department of Geography at the University of Illinois at Chicago John Wymer a self employed archaeologist has been a field officer with the Norfolk Archaeological Unit and the Essex Archaeological Unit

The Archaeology of V. Gordon Childe Vere Gordon Childe, 1994-07 Although V Gordon Childe died 36 years ago he remains the world's most renowned prehistorian His What Happened in History first published in 1942 is probably the most widely read book ever written by an archaeologist His influence and reputation endure despite the fact that many of the theoretical ideas he propounded as well as his interpretations of European and West Asian prehistory have been profoundly modified or even rejected since his death With contributions from such distinguished prehistorians as Kent V Flannery David Harris Leo S Klejn John Mulvaney Colin Renfrew Michael Rowlands and Bruce Trigger The Archaeology of V Gordon Childe is an attempt to evaluate Childe's achievement from different partly national perspectives and to assess how far and why his work remains significant today The contributors examine such persistent themes in Childe's thought as the nature of culture and the role of diffusion in cultural evolution and debate the question of whether Childe anticipated processual archaeology in his famous models of the Neolithic and Urban Revolutions Also included are evaluations of Childe's early career in Australia his relations with Soviet archaeology including a previously unknown letter from Childe to Soviet archaeologists and his impact on American archaeology

The British Palaeolithic Paul Pettitt, Mark White, 2012-11-27 The British Palaeolithic provides the first academic synthesis of the entire British Palaeolithic from the earliest occupation currently understood to be around 980 000 years ago to the end of the Ice Age Landscape and ecology form the canvas for an explicitly interpretative approach aimed at understanding the how different hominin societies addressed the issues of life at the edge of the Pleistocene world Commencing with a consideration of the earliest hominin settlement of Europe the book goes on to examine the behavioural cultural and adaptive repertoires of the first human occupants of Britain from an ecological perspective These themes flow throughout the book as it explores subsequent occupational pulses across more than half a million years of Pleistocene prehistory which saw Homo heidelbergensis the Neanderthals and ultimately Homo sapiens walk these shores The British Palaeolithic fills a major gap in teaching resources as well as in research by providing a current synthesis of the latest research on the period This book represents the culmination of 40 years combined research in this area by two well known experts in the field and is an important new text for students of British archaeology as well as for students and researchers of the continental Palaeolithic period A

Prehistory of the North John F. Landscape of the Mind John F. Hoffecker, 2011-05-31 In Landscape of the Mind John F Hoffecker explores the origin and growth of the human mind drawing on archaeology history and the fossil record He suggests that as an indirect result of bipedal locomotion early humans developed a feedback relationship among their hands brains and tools that evolved into the capacity to externalize thoughts in the form of shaped stone objects When anatomically modern humans evolved a parallel capacity to externalize thoughts as symbolic language individual brains within social groups became integrated into a neocortical Internet or super brain giving birth to the mind Noting that archaeological traces of symbolism coincide with evidence of the ability to generate novel technology Hoffecker contends that human creativity as well as higher order consciousness is a product of the superbrain He equates the subsequent growth of the mind with human history which began in Africa more than 50 000 years ago As anatomically modern humans spread across the globe adapting to a variety of climates and habitats they redesigned themselves technologically and created alternative realities through tools language and art Hoffecker connects the rise of civilization to a hierarchical reorganization of the super brain triggered by explosive population growth Subsequent human history reflects to varying degrees the suppression of the mind s creative powers by the rigid hierarchies of nationstates and empires constraining the further accumulation of knowledge The modern world emerged after 1200 from the fragments of the Roman Empire whose collapse had eliminated a central authority that could thwart innovation Hoffecker concludes with speculation about the possibility of artificial intelligence and the consequences of a mind liberated from its organic antecedents to exist in an independent nonbiological form Lower Palaeolithic Small Tools in Europe and the Levant Jan Michał Burdukiewicz, Avraham Ronen, 2003 Fifteen papers taken from a workshop held in Liege in 2001 aimed at bringing together those researching microlith industries from across Europe Bulletin ,1926

The Middle Palaeolithic Occupation of Europe Wil Roebroeks, Clive Gamble, 1999 This volume focuses on the evidence from the Middle Paleolithic assessing it in its own right rather than looking at it for signs of the development of modern humans as they become recognisable in the subsequent Upper Paleolithic period It provides useful regional reviews of the evidence from different regions of Europe It is the second of three volumes on the phases of the Paleolithic being sponsored
