The Social Construction of Lesbianism Celia Kitzinger,1987 The old model of lesbianism as a pathological affliction has largely given way to a liberal social scientific one which presents it as an alternative lifestyle a way of loving a sexual preference or a source of personal fulfilment This book argues that the shift from pathological to gay affirmative research merely substitutes one depoliticized construction of the lesbian for another The author contends that the liberal social construction instead of furthering the liberation of women represents a new development in the oppression of women in general and lesbians in particular Gay affirmative constructions are fundamentally incompatible with radical feminist theory in which lesbianism is a political statement representing the bonding of women against male supremacy Kitzinger urges researchers to reject the traditional model of science as an objective search for truths or facts but instead to examine their own rhetoric and evaluate their political commitments From publisher s description Modern Love Marcus Collins,2003 Drawing on social economic and political history this volume explains how relations have changed between men and women in Britain in the 20th century It shows how men and women s expectations from life have radically shifted and converged describing how we have moved from inhabiting our separate spheres with wholly different prospects and values towards the ideal if not quite the actuality of equality mutuality companionship and friendship This text also shows how progressive ideas about the relationship between men and women that originated in Britain reverberated throughout the world
