The violence of war and sacrifice were not the antithesis of civilization at Shang Anyang but rather its foundation Excavating the Afterlife Guolong Lai, 2015-03-02 In Excavating the Afterlife Guolong Lai explores the dialectical relationship between sociopolitical change and mortuary religion from an archaeological perspective By examining burial structure grave goods and religious documents unearthed from groups of well preserved tombs in southern China Lai shows that new attitudes toward the dead resulting from the trauma of violent political struggle and warfare permanently altered the early Chinese conceptions of this world and the afterlife The book grounds the important changes in religious beliefs and ritual practices firmly in the sociopolitical transition from the Warring States ca 453-221 BCE to the early empires 3rd century-1st century BCE A methodologically sophisticated synthesis of archaeological, art historical and textual sources Excavating the Afterlife will be of interest to art historians, archaeologists and textual scholars of China as well as to students of comparative religions. Rice, 2009-02-17 In Maya Political Science Time, Astronomy and the Cosmos Prudence M. Rice proposed a new model of Maya political organization in which geopolitical seats of power rotated according to a 256 year calendar cycle known as the May. This fundamental connection between timekeeping and Maya political organization sparked Rice's interest in the origins of the two major calendars used by the ancient lowland Maya one 260 days long and the other having 365 days. In Maya Calendar Origins she presents a provocative new thesis about the origins and development of the calendrical system. Integrating data from anthropology, archaeology, art history, astronomy, ethnohistory, myth and linguistics Rice argues that the Maya calendars developed about a millennium earlier than commonly thought around 1200 BC as an outgrowth of observations of the natural phenomena that scheduled the movements of late Archaic hunter gatherer collectors throughout what became Mesoamerica. She asserts that an understanding of the cycles of weather and celestial movements became the basis of power for early rulers who could thereby claim control over supernatural cosmic forces. Rice shows how time became materialized, transformed into status objects such as monuments that encoded calendrical or temporal concerns as well as politicized, becoming the foundation for societal order, political legitimization and wealth. Rice's research also sheds new light on the origins of the Popol Vuh which Rice believes encodes the history of the development of the Mesoamerican calendars. She also explores the connections between the Maya and early Olmec and Izapan cultures in the Isthmian region who shared with the Maya the cosmovision and ideology incorporated into the calendrical systems

A Comparison of Ancient Near Eastern Law Collections Prior to the First Millennium BC Samuel A. Jackson, 2008 This work sets out to compare the pre first millennium BC law collections of Mesopotamia, Egypt and Hatti. By highlighting and explaining consistent differences in both framing and content it questions the notion of a uniform ancient Near Eastern legal culture The Emergence of Civilisation Revisited John C. Barrett, Paul Halstead, 2004 The history of archaeology is a history of great discoveries and a history of the debate about the human condition. It is a history of how we understand and link to our history and it is unsurprising then that archaeology changes over time bringing new perspectives to our view of the past. Thirty years on from Colin Renfrew's landmark publication The Emergence of Civilisation a group of Aegean prehistorians came together as part of the Sheffield Centre for Aegean Archaeology's Round Table discussions to acknowledge this ground breaking work and to bring the subject up to date. They focus on the themes that Renfrew brought to archaeology through this work and which continue to be of significance today the way we characterise the context and the nature of change the methodological procedures that should be followed and the interpretation of the dynamics of past societies Fourteen papers from the discussions including contributions from John Cherry Todd Whitelaw and Renfrew himself examine a fascinating and diverse section of topics including settlement leadership and social status
