ABSTRACT

A challenging step in any qualitative research project is data coding and analysis. If the data coding is done appropriately, it will lead the researchers to develop patterns or themes and to make final inferences about the research problem. As such, qualitative researchers are supposed to take systematically informed steps and procedures to perform qualitative data coding and analysis. However, this is not as easy as it might be thought, and even published articles might fall short of providing a thorough explanation of their methods and procedures, making it difficult for other researchers, especially early career researchers, to aim for replication of the study. This article presents a review of the methods and data coding and analysis procedures in the field of L2 writing as a case in point. We scrutinized and analyzed all 168 articles with a qualitative orientation published in the Journal of Second Language Writing (JSLW) over its lifecycle. We present the results and discuss some articles to illustrate how L2 writing researchers handled qualitative data coding and analysis and showcase problematic areas. The outcomes of the review and analysis, including the showcase articles, provide some tips and guidelines for prospective L2 writing researchers and other stakeholders more broadly.

Papers In Language Language Teaching:

Papers on Language Acquisition, Language Learning, and Language Teaching Henning Wode, 1983 This volume brings together a number of papers dealing with various aspects of the study of language acquisition and language learning The intention is to overcome barriers imposed by restrictions in the accessibility of both publishing sources journals conference reports working papers as well as languages Therefore all papers are in English Those originally written in German have been translated The papers originated between 1970 and 1980 They derive from long term investigations which began 1968 at the University of Freiburg and which were continued since 1969 at the University of Kiel The essential theme is the nature of man's language learning system i.e. the ability which allows human beings to learn and to be taught natural languages This ability is unique to human beings it is species specific and very likely biologically endowed i.e. innate One of the major concerns throughout these papers is to show that learning a foreign language in the classroom via foreign language teaching is by no means totally different from mastering a language in natural situations Foreign language teaching must be integrated into a comprehensive view of language learning which includes all types of language acquisition

Innovative language teaching and learning at university: a look at new trends Nelson Becerra, Rosalba Biasini, Hanna Magedera-Hofhansl, Ana Reimão, 2019-05-06 The present volume collects papers from InnoConf18 which took place at the University of Liverpool in June 2018 The theme of the conference was New trends in language teaching and learning at university The contributions collected here aim to reflect on best practice in the sector while at the same time capturing state of the art language teaching and learning methodologies The short papers in this peer reviewed selection display examples of active learning and student empowerment across all levels of learning and demonstrate the benefits of maximising engagement through a creative and inspiring learning environment We believe this volume will be of use to language teachers and practitioners in higher education and beyond

Translation & Language Teaching Kirsten Malmkjær, 1998 For at least a century attitudes to the use of translation in language teaching have been predominantly negative the deprecators of the methodology having been particularly vocal at the turn of the 20th century and again in the 1960s and 70s Yet for all of this time translation has remained a significant component in the teaching of many languages in many parts of the world and the 1980s saw a revival of support for the practice among a number of applied linguists Language teaching for translators has been rather less contentious It has always been assumed that translators must know their languages thoroughly but little has been written about how they as a special group might be taught their languages In the final quarter of the 20th century attention among translation scholars and pedagogues has turned so decisively away from linguistics that even teaching translators about their languages and how they can be put to use has been frowned on in many quarters This book takes a fresh look at both issues Part One addresses the question of the place and nature of language teaching in translator training programmes Part Two deals with the issue of how translation might best be used as a teaching and testing methodology in language classes Finally the papers in Part Three address the relationship between translation and language teaching from the somewhat divergent points of view of the translator trainer and language teacher
