Dilemmas in the Courtroom Martha L. Komter, 2020-07-24 Interactional dilemmas occur when participants are required to engage in two contradictory activities at the same time or orient to two conflicting goals The existence of such dilemmas provides a context for interactants to be creative pro active and indeed strategic as they maneuver between the numerous demands placed on them and produce behavior that fits the ongoing communication episode Trials are one such episode in which the various participants in this case the judge the defendant and lawyers experience interactional dilemmas and work to resolve these through their behavior This volume offers an analysis of both the institutional factors which promote dilemmas during court proceedings and the interactional behaviors used by trial participants to navigate these dilemmas Using ethnomethodology conversation analysis and ethnography as complementary methods Komter s research combines an understanding of the legal rules for courtroom procedure and crime descriptions with details of actual trial discourse. The analysis is based upon fieldnotes of 48 trials and audiotapes of 31 trials all related to violent crimes and occurring in courtrooms in Amsterdam, Utrecht and Haarlem. Dilemmas reflect enduring conflicts of interest or values they derive from the ongoing institutional and interactional positions of the various courtroom participants. Komter points to the existence of dilemmas and to their role in shaping unfolding interaction during the trials. She especially highlights the different dilemmas faced by judges and suspects and the ways in which behavior on the part of one constrains that of the other. She further reveals the wide variety of ways in which interactants handle dilemmas: their innovativeness and resourcefulness and the consequences these have for the unfolding interaction and the court's ultimate judgment. Of course dilemmas are not only relevant to an understanding of judicial interaction. This study has implications for other contexts since concerns with credibility, blame, responsibility and morality and their opposites are incorporated into many everyday interactions. This volume examines behavior that is quite specific to a single context yet its conclusions bear upon a wide range of communication events. Of interest to scholars in communication, linguistics, anthropology, criminal justice or those with interests in ethnomethodology, conversation analysis and ethnography. Conviction Doreen J. McBarnet, 1983-09-08

The Law Lords Alan Paterson, 1983-09-01      Structures of Social Action J. Maxwell Atkinson, 1985-04-04 Bringing together thirteen original papers by leading American and British researchers, this volume reflects fresh developments in the increasingly influential field of conversation analysis. It begins by outlining the theoretical and methodological foundations of the field and goes on to develop some of the main themes that have emerged from topical empirical research. These include the organisation of preference, topic, non-vocal activities and apparently spontaneous responses such as laughter and applause. The collection represents the most comprehensive statement yet to be published on this type of research. SSRC Newsletter Social Science Research Council (Great Britain), 1981-03      American Bar Foundation Research Journal

American Bar Foundation, 1983      Learners' Experiences of Immersion Education Michèle De Courcy, 2002 Much of the extant literature on immersion programs has focused on the outcomes of such programs and has tended to deal with early immersion where learners commence primary school in a new language. This book adds to the literature by its emphasis on the process of learning in immersion programs, in particular those relating to reading. Moreover, the learners in this book are in the later stages of their education at secondary school or university. In addition, another topic covered in this book is the investigation of learning processes during immersion in unusual languages, those where the language of instruction is not cognate with English. Michele de Courcy is a Senior Lecturer in Language Education at La Trobe University in Australia. Jacket      Ethnomethodological Sociology Jeff Coulter, 1990 Ethnomethodological Sociology presents some of the classic papers in ethnomethodology together with the most important recent contributions. It includes a clear introduction and a comprehensive 80-page bibliography. It contains a significant range of ethnomethodological work spanning 20 years. The volume exhibits the theoretical power and philosophical significance of this domain of sociological enquiry Concerned to elucidate in fine detail the formal properties of human conduct in situ ethnomethodologists have made great progress in specifying how members of society pursuing their diverse practical purposes manage to construct the intelligibility and orderliness of their practical affairs in methodical and formally analysable ways This collection effectively documents that progress
