Making Of The Victorian Organ:

The Making of the Victorian Organ Nicholas Thistlethwaite, 1999-08-26 This important 1990 book provides a comprehensive survey of English organ building during the most innovative fifty years in its history The History of the English Organ Stephen Bicknell, 1996 This 1996 book describes the history of organs built in England from AD 900 to the present day

Studies in English Organ Music Iain Quinn, 2018-06-14 Studies in English Organ Music is a collection of essays by expert authors that examines key areas of the repertoire in the history of organ music in England The essays on repertoire are placed alongside supporting studies in organ building and liturgical practice in order to provide a comprehensive contextualization An analysis of the symbiotic relationship between the organ liturgy and composers reveals how the repertoire has been shaped by these complementary areas and developed through history This volume is the first collection of specialist studies related to the field of English organ music

The Making of the Victorian Organ. Cambridge Musical Texts and Monographs N. Thistlethwaite, 1990

Organ-building in Georgian and Victorian England Nicholas Thistlethwaite, 2020 Established for the building of keyboard instruments by the mid 1790s the workshop of brothers Robert and William Gray had become one of the leading organ makers in London with instruments in St Paul s Covent Garden and St Martin in the Fields Under William s son John Gray the firm built some of the largest English organs of the 1820s and 1830s as well as exporting major instruments to Boston and Charleston in the United States In the early 1840s with the marriage of John Gray s daughter to Frederick Davison a member of the circle of Bach enthusiasts around the composer Samuel Wesley the firm became Gray they were designed to perform a repertoire dominated by orchestral transcriptions Many of the instruments made by the firm have been lost or altered but the surviving organs in St Anne Limehouse 1851 Usk Parish Church 1861 and Clumber Chapel 1889 testify to the quality and importance of Gray Davison s work This book charts the firm s history from its foundation in 1772 to Frederick Davison s death in 1889 At the same time it describes changes in musical taste and liturgical use and explores such topics as provincial music festivals the town hall organ domestic music making and popular entertainment the building of churches and the impact on church music of the Evangelical and Tractarian movements It will appeal to organ aficionados interested in the evolution of the English organ in the later Georgian and Victorian eras as well as other music scholars and cultural historians

NICHOLAS THISTLETHWAITE has written extensively on the history of the English organ and other aspects of English church music and his book The making of the Victorian organ 1990 is recognised as the standard work on the subject He has acted as consultant for the restoration and rebuilding of organs most recently at St Edmundsbury Cathedral and Christ Church

Music and Institutions in Nineteenth-Century Britain Dr Paul Rodmell, 2012-12-28 In nineteenth century British society music and musicians were organized as they had never been before This organization was manifested in part by the introduction of music into powerful institutions both out of belief in music s inherently beneficial properties and also to promote music occupations and professions in society at large This book provides a representative and varied sample of the interactions between music and organizations in various locations in the nineteenth century British Empire exploring not only how and why music was institutionalized but also how and why institutions became musicalized Individual essays explore amateur societies that promoted music making institutions that played host to music making groups both amateur and professional music in diverse educational institutions and the relationships between music and what might be referred to as the institutions of state Through all of the essays runs the theme of the various ways in which institutions of varying formality and rigidity interacted with music and musicians and the mutual benefit and exploitation that resulted from that interaction

Vincent Novello (1781-1861) Fiona M. Palmer, 2006 Today Vincent Novello 1781 1861 is remembered as the father of the music publishing firm Fiona Palmer's evaluation of Novello is the first to provide a rounded view of his life and work and the nature of his importance both in his own time and to posterity In his wide ranging editorial work Novello found his true vocation positioning himself as preservationist pioneer and philanthropist His work as composer though unremarkable in quality mirrored the demands and expectations of his consumers Novello emerges from this study as a visionary who single mindedly pursued greater musical knowledge for the benefit of everyone

Bach's Feet David Yearsley, 2012-01-19 Yearsley explores the cultural significance of making music with hands and feet a mode of performance unique to the organ

The American Organist, 2009 The Organ Yearbook, 2009 The Organ, 1923 Organists and Organ Playing in Nineteenth-century France and Belgium Orpha Ochse, 1994 This account is not just a record of stellar events and famous names it includes failures all but forgotten musicians and unexpected encounters

Organists' Review, 2002 A History of the Organs in St Paul's Cathedral Nicholas M. Plumley, Austin Niland, 2001 Beginning with the Father Smith organ of 1694 the organs in the famous London cathedral are traced through enlargement and rebuildings of the Smith organ through the Willis organ of 1872 and 1930 to the current Mander organ of 225 ranks which comprises much of its predecessors Also covered are other organs in the Cathedral and even some information about the previous cathedral building destroyed in the London fire of 1666

The Registration of Baroque Organ Music Barbara Owen, 1997 Barbara Owen has prepared the first work to present in a single volume the registrational practices of organists from 1550 to 1800 Along with the many stoplists and discussions of performance traditions the book discusses the religious and political context for each period are region and how these affected the work of composers and organ builders Full promo description Barbara Owen has compiled and intelligently analyzed all of the available information on registration practices from the late Renaissance to Classical times into a coherently organized and cogently presented text The depth of research the thoroughness of approach and the practical nature of the material make this text unique at the present time Christopher Young Indiana University It is rare to find a book that combines such careful scholarship with a practical focus that makes it accessible to performing musicians as well as research specialists Sharon L Gorman Notes Here is the first single book to present registrational practices of organists from c 1550 to 1800 Each of the four parts of the book the Renaissance and the Early High and Late Baroque starts with a brief description of the political and religious climate of the period and the way it affected organ building and the music composed at the time Within each historical period Owen provides for each country a list of the active composers and information about representative organs including their locations dates builders and stoplists She then discusses the registrational practices in each area in relation to contemporary musical styles and forms referring to sources such as scores and treatises In light of the historical evidence Owen advises organists on adapting the earlier principles and practices to modern instruments in order to perform Baroque organ works in a style appropriate to their period and region With its comprehensive geographic historical and musicological approach The Registration of Baroque Organ Music will long remain an invaluable source book for teachers and performers Hamilton's Catechism of the Organ James Alexander Hamilton,1992 Organ Handbook Organ Historical Society. National Convention,1992 The Durham University Journal University of Durham,1992 The Organs of the City of London Nicholas M. Plumley,1996 The Cumulative Book Index ,1991 A world list of books in the English language
