Pence, 1998 Gregory Pence offers a candid look at the arguments for and against human cloning Making Babies, Making Families Mary Lyndon Shanley, 1925 Considers the current state of parenting in the United States and offers a new definition of family and a new approach to family law Five Irish women Emer Nolan, 2019-09-16 Five Irish Women is comprised of five interlinked portraits of exceptional Irish women from various fields literature journalism music politics who have achieved outstanding reputations since the 1960s Edna O'Brien Sinéad O'Connor Nuala O'Faolain Bernadette McAliskey and Anne Enright Several of these could claim to be among the best known Irish people of their day The book looks at their achievements works of art in some cases but also life writing interviews and speeches and at their reception in Ireland and elsewhere shedding light on some of

Come Drink from My Cup: Musings of an East Harlem Poet Damon Chandler, 2014-02-20 I hope you'll enjoy these poems Like wine life can be bitter sweet so come drink from my cup Take a small sip and swallow slowly Let it trickle down deep into your soul

Labor of Love Heather Jacobson, 2016 Drawn from extensive interviews with paid gestational surrogates women employed to carry children who are not genetically their own Labor of Love reveals the challenges they face as they deal with complicated medical procedures delicate work family balances and tricky social dynamics The book demonstrates the extent to which advances in reproductive technology are affecting all Americans changing how we think about maternity family and the labor involved in giving birth

Making Babies Mary Warnock, 2002-07-18 The development of new reproductive technologies has raised urgent questions and debates about how and by whom these treatments should be controlled On the one hand individuals and groups have claimed access to assisted reproduction as a right and some have also claimed that this access should be available free of charge As well as clinically infertile heterosexual couples this right has been claimed by single women gay couples post menopausal women and couples who wish to delay having children for various reasons Others have argued that a desire to have children does not make it a human right and moreover that there are some people who should not be assisted to become parents on grounds of age sexuality or lifestyle Mary Warnock steers a clear path through the web of complex issues underlying these views She begins by analysing what it means to claim something as a right and goes on to discuss the cases of different groups of people She also examines the ethical problems faced by particular types of assisted reproduction including artificial insemination in vitro fertilization and surrogacy and argues that in the future human cloning may well be a viable and acceptable form of treatment for some types of infertility
