Mediterranean Urbanization 800 600 Bc:

Mediterranean Urbanization 800-600 BC Robin Osborne, Barry Cunliffe, 2005-10-27 Urban life as we know it in the Mediterranean began in the early Iron Age settlements of great size and internal diversity appear in the archaeological record This collection of essays offers for the first time a systematic discussion of the beginnings of urbanization across the Mediterranean from Cyprus through Greece and Italy to France and Spain Leading scholars in the field look critically at what is meant by urbanization and analyse the social processes that lead to the development of social complexity and the growth of towns

Knowledge Networks and Craft Traditions in the Ancient World Katharina Rebay-Salisbury, Ann Brysbaert, Lin Foxhall, 2014-08-07 This edited volume investigates knowledge networks based on materials and associated technologies in Prehistoric Europe and the Classical Mediterranean It emphasises the significance of material objects to the construction maintenance and collapse of networks of various forms which are central to explanations of cultural contact and change Focusing on the materiality of objects and on the way in which materials are used adds a multidimensional quality to networks The properties functions and styles of different materials are intrinsically linked to the way in which knowledge flows and technologies are transmitted Transmission of technologies from one craft to another is one of the main drivers of innovation whilst sharing knowledge is enabled and limited by the extent of associated social networks in place Archaeological research has often been limited to studying objects made of one particular material in depth be it lithic materials ceramics textiles glass metal wood or others The knowledge flow and transfer between crafts that deal with different materials have often been overlooked This book takes a fresh approach to the reconstruction of knowledge networks by integrating two or more craft traditions in each of its chapters The authors well known experts and early career researchers provide concise case studies that cover a wide range of materials The scope of the book extends from networks of craft traditions to implications for society in a wider sense materials objects and the technologies used to make and distribute them are interwoven with social meaning People make objects but objects make people the materiality of objects shapes our understanding of the world and our place within it In this book objects are treated as clues to social networks of different sorts that can be contrasted and compared both spatially and diachronically

Classical Archaeology in Context Donald Haggis, Carla Antonaccio, 2015-05-19 This book compiles a series of case studies derived from archaeological excavation in Greek cultural contexts in the Mediterranean ca 800 100 B C addressing the current state of the field the goals and direction of Greek archaeology and its place in archaeological thought and practice Overviews of archaeological sites and analyses of assemblages and contexts explore how new forms of data methods of data recovery and analysis and sampling strategies have affected the discourse in classical archaeology and the range of research questions and strategies at our disposal Recent excavations and field practices are steering the way that we approach Greek cultural landscapes and form broader theoretical perspectives while generating new research questions and interpretive frameworks that in turn

affect how we sample sites collect and study material remains and ultimately construct the archaeological record The book confronts the implications of an integrated dialogue between realms of data and interpretive methodologies addressing how reengagement with the site assemblage or artifact from the excavation context can structure the way that we link archaeological and systemic contexts in classical archaeology 2005 Massimo Mastrogregori,2009-12-22 Annually published since 1930 the International Bibliography of Historical Sciences IBOHS is an international bibliography of the most important historical monographs and periodical articles published throughout the world which deal with history from the earliest to the most recent times The IBOHS is thus currently the only continuous bibliography of its kind covering such a broad period of time spectrum of subjects and geographical range The works are arranged systematically according to period region or historical discipline and alphabetically according to authors names or in the case of anonymous works by the characteristic main title word The bibliography contains a geographical index and indexes of persons and authors The Etruscan World Jean MacIntosh Turfa,2014-11-13 The Etruscans can be shown to have made significant and in some cases perhaps the first technical advances in the central and northern Mediterranean To the Etruscan people we can attribute such developments as the tie beam truss in large wooden structures surveying and engineering drainage and water tunnels the development of the foresail for fast long distance sailing vessels fine techniques of metal production and other pyrotechnology post mortem C sections in medicine and more In art many technical and iconographic developments although they certainly happened first in Greece or the Near East are first seen in extant Etruscan works preserved in the lavish tombs and goods of Etruscan aristocrats These include early portraiture the first full length painted portrait the first perspective view of a human figure in monumental art specialized techniques of bronze casting and reduction fired pottery the bucchero phenomenon Etruscan contacts through trade treaty and intermarriage linked their culture with Sardinia Corsica and Sicily with the Italic tribes of the peninsula and with the Near Eastern kingdoms Greece and the Greek colonial world Iberia Gaul and the Punic network of North Africa and influenced the cultures of northern Europe In the past fifteen years striking advances have been made in scholarship and research techniques for Etruscan Studies Archaeological and scientific discoveries have changed our picture of the Etruscans and furnished us with new specialized information Thanks to the work of dozens of international scholars it is now possible to discuss topics of interest that could never before be researched such as Etruscan mining and metallurgy textile production foods and agriculture In this volume over 60 experts provide insights into all these aspects of Etruscan culture and more with many contributions available in English for the first time to allow the reader access to research that may not otherwise be available to them Lavishly illustrated The Etruscan World brings to life the culture and material past of the Etruscans and highlights key points of development in research making it essential reading for researchers academics and students of this fascinating civilization Ancient West & East ,2008 Political Economies of the Aegean Bronze Age Daniel J. researchers to address how Mycenaean and Minoan states controlled the economy The contributions originally delivered at the 2007 Langford Conference at the Florida State University examine the political economies of state and pre state entities within the Aegean Bronze Age including the issues of centralization and multiple scales of production distribution and consumption within a polity importance of extraregional trade craft specialization the role of non elite institutions and the political economy before the emergence of the palaces The contributors address these issues from an explicitly comparative perspective both within and across Minoan and Mycenaean contexts The conclusions reached in this volume shed new light on the essential differences between and among Minoan and Mycenaean states through their political economies

Side-by-side Survey Susan E. Alcock, John F. Cherry, 2004 Twenty years ago John Cherry looked forward to the day when archaeological survey projects working around the Mediterranean region the Frogs round the pond would begin to compare and synthesize the information they had collected He anticipated researchers tackling big questions of inter regional scope in new and interesting ways working at a geographical scale considerably larger than that of the individual survey Was his optimism misplaced Despite the extraordinary growth of interest in field survey projects and regional analysis and despite the developments in survey methodology that have been discussed and implemented in the past two decades few scholars have attempted to use survey data in a comparative mode and to answer the broad scale questions confronting social historians In this volume which is the outcome of an advanced Workshop held at the University of Michigan in 2002 a number of prominent archaeologists return to the question of comparability They discuss the potential benefits of working in a comparative format with evidence from many different Mediterranean survey projects and consider the practical problems that present roadblocks to achieving that objective From mapping and manuring to human settlement and demography environment and culture each addresses different questions often with quite different approaches together they offer a range of perspectives on how to put surveys side by side Contributors include Susan E Alcock John Cherry Jack L Davis Peter Attema Martijn van Leusen James C Wright Robin Osborne David Mattingly T J Wilkinson and Richard E Blanton Europe Between the Oceans Barry W.
