Louise's Legacy

By Don Mahoney, Board President

Louise Hallberg was always very protective of all the lifeforms in her garden, especially butterflies and quail. She expressed her concern many times that all the birds and butterflies, "the little creatures," would soon have nowhere to go as Sonoma County became more developed with more and more grapes. She saw her nine acres as a refuge for butterflies, and created the Hallberg Butterfly Garden nonprofit as an instrument to keep the property as a refuge into the future after her death.

The mission of the nonprofit is to preserve her property as habitat and to provide education on the value of wildlife to the general public and especially children. She has left her property to the nonprofit to keep the habitat intact. We, the Board of Directors, have been given the responsibility of keeping Louise's vision alive and thriving. We have dedicated volunteers and several very part time staff who are quite capable and are continuing the work. Louise left a small endowment, which along with fundraising and donor help, should sustain the garden for many years to come.

We will keep the garden open

for tours by appointment, especially for school groups. But more than anything, we want to keep the garden a healthy habitat for butterflies and other wildlife. Habitat gardens can be low maintenance, but they are not no maintenance. We always eagerly seek volunteers who are willing to work hard either giving tours, pulling weeds, or making new plantings. We hope to improve the gardens by adding many new butterfly plants, especially natives. We would like to make the gardens an educational model of how habitat can be both aesthetically pleasing and a valuable home for butterflies, bees, birds, salamanders and all other creatures of the ecosystem.

We hope all of our supporters will continue to help us in any way they can. This is a garden for the community of Sonoma County and with that community's help we will thrive into the future.

Católicos Mario T. García, 2008-10-01 Chicano Catholicism both as a popular religion and a foundation for community organizing has over the past century inspired Chicano resistance to external forces of oppression and discrimination including from other non Mexican Catholics and even the institutionalized church Chicano Catholics have also used their faith to assert their particular identity and establish a kind of cultural citizenship Based exclusively on original research and sources Mario T García here offers the first major historical study to explore the various dimensions of the role of Catholicism in Chicano history in the twentieth century This is also one of the first significant studies in the still limited field of Chicano religious history Topics range from how early Chicano Catholic intellectuals and civil rights leaders were influenced by Catholic Social Doctrine to the role that popular religion has played in the lives of ordinary men and women in both rural and urban areas García also examines faith based Chicano community movements like Católicos Por La Raza in the 1960s and the Sanctuary movement in Los Angeles in the 1980s While Latino a history and culture has been for the most part inextricably linked with the tenets and practices of Catholicism there has been very little written until recently about Chicano Catholic history García helps to fill that void and explore the impact both positive and negative that the Catholic experience has had on the Chicano community
