Atkinson, Thomas S. Baskett, Kenneth C. Sadler, 1982 Most mourning doves Zenaidura macroura banded in eastern Missouri in 1968-76 and recovered outside the State moved south-southeast into Kentucky Tennessee Mississippi Alabama Georgia Florida and South Carolina Most doves banded in central and western Missouri and recovered elsewhere moved south-southwest into Kansas Oklahoma Louisiana Texas Mexico and Central America Several central Missouri doves moved southeast Mourning Dove Management Units William Henry Kiel, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, 1959 Tentative mourning dove management units for the United States are outlined on the basis of an analysis of bandings during the 1953-57 period The three units Eastern Central and Western most nearly meet the criteria of an ideal management unit a unit that produces the doves it harvests and does not produce doves that are harvested by other units As an average for the three management units 95 percent of a unit's hunting kill is produced inside the unit and 96 percent of a unit's harvested production is shot inside the unit or in Mexico and Central America Hence the three units are practically independent of each other These conclusions must be considered only tentative because they are based on insufficient band recoveries and on weighting procedures that need to be evaluated through further research Ecology and Management of the Mourning Dove Thomas S. Baskett, 1993 Nicely published apparently with subsidy by the Wildlife Management Institute Washington D C Comprehensively deals with the most numerous widespread and heavily hunted of North American gamebirds Among the topics covered in 29 contributions classification and distributions migration nesting reproductive strategy growth and maturation feeding habits diseases survey procedures population trends care of captive mourning doves and hunting The final chapter identifies research and management needs Annotation copyright by Book News Inc Portland OR
