Nabokov Others Patterns In Russian Literature:

Nabokov and others William Woodin Rowe,1976 Nabokov & Others William Woodin Rowe,1979 Patterns in Russian Literature II William Woodin Rowe,1988 Authorship in Nabokov's Prefaces Jacqueline Hamrit,2015-01-12 Whereas literary criticism has mainly oscillated between the death of the author Barthes and the return of the author Couturier this work suggests another perspective on authorship through an analysis of Nabokov's prefaces. It is here argued that the author being neither dead nor tyrannical alternates between authoritative apparitions and receding disappearances in the double gesture of mastery without mastery which Derrida calls expropriation that is a simultaneous attempt to appropriate one's work control it have it under one's power and expropriate it losing control by loosening one's grip. The intention of this is to approach through one's experience of reading and interpreting the experience of self effacement and impersonality pertaining to writing of Blanchot. Prefaces are considered to be suitable places for the deconstruction of the classical image of Nabokov's arrogance through the unearthing of his reserve and vulnerability. This work provides an account of the mere intuition which therefore does not pretend to be a conclusive and definitive interpretation of another image of Nabokov whose undeniable talent for deception seems in accordance with a need for discretion and secrecy.

Nabokov's Early Fiction Julian W. Connolly,1992-08-20 A study of the evolution of Nabokov's prose fiction from the 1920s to the late 1930s. Focusing on masterpieces such as Lolita Professor Connolly points to the author's manipulation of the relationship between self and other. Autobiographical Statements in Twentieth-Century Russian Literature Jane Gary Harris,2014-07-14 The fifteen essays in this volume explore the extraordinary range and diversity of the autobiographical mode in twentieth century Russian literature from various critical perspectives. They will whet the appetite of readers interested in penetrating beyond the canonical texts of Russian literature. The introduction focuses on the central issues and key problems of current autobiographical theory and practice in both the West and in the Soviet Union while each essay treats an aspect of auto biographical praxis in the context of an individual author's work and often in dialogue with another of the included writers. Examined here are first the experimental writings of the early years of the twentieth century Rozanov Remizov and Bely second the unique autobiographical statements of the mid 1920s through the early 1940s Mandelstam Pasternak Olesha and Zoshchenko and finally the diverse and vital contemporary writings of the 1960s through the 1980s as exemplified not only by creative writers but also by scholars by Soviet citizens as well as by emigrs Trifonov Nadezhda Mandelstam Lydia Ginzburg Nabokov Jakobson Sinyavsky and Limonov. Nabokov's translation of Pushkin's Eugene Onegin 1964 and its accompanying Commentary along with Ada or Ardor 1969 his densely allusive late English language novel have appeared nearly inscrutable to many interpreters of his work If not outright failures they are often considered relatively unsuccessful curiosities In Bozovic's insightful study these key texts reveal Nabokov's ambitions to reimagine a canon of nineteenth and twentieth century Western masterpieces with Russian literature as a central rather than marginal strain Nabokov's scholarly work translations and lectures on literature bear resemblance to New Critical canon reformations however Nabokov's canon is pointedly translingual and transnational and serves to legitimize his own literary practice The new angles and theoretical framework offered by Nabokov's Canon help us to understand why Nabokov's provocative monuments remain powerful source texts for several generations of diverse international writers as well as richly productive material for visual cinematic musical and other artistic adaptations

Barta,2000-01-10 Modern Russia has been shaped by Peter the Great's sudden attempt to transform it into a European country Since shapeshifting and identity are so closely linked in Russian history it is hardly surprising that metamorphosis is a prevalent albeit hitherto neglected theme in Russian literature Metamorphoses in Russian Modernism provides the first detailed account of metamorphosis as a Russian theme structuring principle and source of artistic identity Barta examines how the magical transformations depicted in the ancient classics and in the oral epic heritage resonate in Russian literature and film at the fin de siècle and the early decades of the twentieth century a period of dynamic change in Russian culture Two hundred years after Peter's forceful westernization and facing its second crucial transformation in 1917 Russia witnessed the decay of classic realism and positivism and the rise of irrational philosophies psychoanalysis artistic experimentation Marxism as well as the birth of the new genre of film This in depth volume examines metamorphosis in the works of prominent representatives of the divided Russian intelligentsia the Symbolists the most famous migr writer Nabokov Olesha the fellow traveller attempting to find his place in the Soviet state the enthusiastic poet of the Bolshevik movement Maiakovskii and finally Russia's greatest film director Sergei Eisenstein The volume directs attention to the fact that Russia itself is a metamorph The shapeshifter always retains features of previous identities and is sometimes capable of returning into previous forms whether today's Russia will want to or be able to do so remains to be seen. It is futile to attempt to try to understand this civilisation let alone predict its future without considering the intellectual, social and emotional reasons why it is not at rest with itself. It is to this end that this volume hopes to make a contribution.
