Napoleon's Proconsul in Egypt Ronald T. Ridley, 1998 The early 19th century was the heroic age of Egyptology It was also largely dominated by Napoleon who had led his ill considered invasion of Egypt 1798 1799 The eastern Mediterranean was under the control of the ramshackle Ottoman Empire from whom the Greeks were to win their War of Independence Apart from its archaeological importance Egypt was also one of the most important cockpits in the struggle amongst the various European powers and their fight against the Turks Bernardino Drovetti was the French consul in Egypt for most of the early 19th century After an important career in the Napoleonic army he came to Egypt in 1803 where he was to play a leading role in many fields diplomacy politics archaeology and exploration amassing no fewer than three collections of antiquities

Views of Ancient Egypt since Napoleon Bonaparte David Jeffreys, 2016-06-16 This book addresses some of the main themes of the study of Egypt during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries In a combination of case studies and discursive chapters the status of Egypt as an important example of traditional Asian scholarship and as an ancient model of imperialism itself is examined Contributions range from studies of nineteenth century antiquarianism and the collecting of Egyptian antiquities as an extension of the territorial ambitions and rivalries of the European powers to explorations of how Egypt is understood and interpreted in contemporary societies Views of Ancient Egypt also considers the way in which Ancient Egypt has been adopted by less privileged members of some societies as a cultural icon of past greatness

The Mahdi and Africa John D Grainger, 2025-11-30 The story of the Mahdi of Sudan is generally related from the British point of view though it was more an African event The Mahdi s uprising was the latest in a series of Islamic rebellions and wars which began in the eighteenth century It also had a profound effect on the rest of North and East Africa destroying the Egyptian Empire provoking Ethiopia into a new unification which allowed it to successfully resist the Mahdists the Egyptians and the Italians it brought British forces forward from the East African coast as far as Uganda for fear that some European power would seize the sources of the Nile and block the river s flow Eventually but only after several humiliating defeats the Mahdist state was overthrown by a British invasion led by Kitchener and participated in by Churchill this also produced a difficult confrontation at Fashoda between the British conquerors and a French expedition sparking a European crisis The author sets the Mahdist war in the wider context of Africa and Islam and in the context of the development of African states but also with a glance forward to the present day where the most important development in Africa is the extensive Islamic uprising which is replicating that of the nineteenth century richer and more complex than we might have believed possible From publisher description Annual Egyptological Bibliography ,2001 The Life of Napoleon I John Holland Rose,1914 Minerva ,1999 Tombs for the Living Elisabeth R. O'Connell,2007 The characterization of Egyptian monasticism as a desert movement arises primarily from the success of certain fourth century literary texts circulated outside of Egypt Yet recent historical research has demonstrated a whole range of choices for ascetic dwelling in late antique Egypt where men and women might practice their discipline in households in cities and towns in abandoned villages in the outer or inner desert Archaeological including papyrological epigraphical and representational sources evidence another widely practiced option which has been surprisingly under recognized by historians of early Christianity the reuse of monumental funerary architecture for habitation In this context it is crucial to recognize that both Greek oros and Coptic toou can mean not only mountain and desert but also cemetery and monastery Thus textual sources can easily mislead historians unaware of the archaeological context of a given desert monastery Using a combination of archaeological sources together with literary texts transmitted through the manuscript tradition I explore the practical and ideological motivations for monastic occupation of monumental funerary architecture in one geographically circumscribed region Western Thebes As the necropolis of ancient Egypt's great southern capital Western Thebes provides an unparalleled corpus of archaeological material evidencing the establishment of churches saints shrines monasteries and hermitages in adapted pharaonic tombs and mortuary temples The contents of excavated Greek and Coptic documentary e.g legal texts letters magical medical texts and literary papyri e.g saints Lives allow multiple points of access to both the physical description and conceptual construction of the ancient Necropolis in Late Antiquity Texts transmitted through the manuscript tradition record the Lives of saints said to have occupied the region and vividly depict ancient tombs and their mummified inhabitants My analysis demonstrates that perceptions might not always be fixed In texts the representation of the ancient Necropolis and its ascetic occupants might differ depending on subject audience occasion and circumstance Nevertheless even in the most everyday texts authors recognized the Necropolis as a place apart from the mundane world and I argue reusing the funerary monuments of the past conferred authority and status upon its Christian residents Egypt ,2005 Explores every facet of Egypt's geography society history and culture to build up an intriguing image of what life was like in the land of the pharaohs Publisher Wondrous Curiosities Stephanie Moser,2006 Based on her exploration of the British Museum's world famous collection of Egyptian antiquities this pioneering study reveals the powerful role of museums in shaping our understanding of science culture and history The Painted Tomb-chapel of Nebamun R. B. Parkinson,2008 The paintings from Nebamun's tomb chapel are among the greatest and most famous of the British Museum's treasures Yet much about them remains mysterious and this book is concerned with the detective work undertaken to help us to understand and see them properly before they are displayed in a new permanent gallery in 2008 For this the paintings are being conserved and remounted in the Museum's specialist laboratories a process that is revealing radical new information about painting techniques in ancient Egypt This together with archival work is helping us to solve the problem of the tomb chapel s location at Thebes last seen in the 1820s when the paintings were removed Richard Parkinson discusses each painting fully with reconstructions and translations of the hieroglyphic texts a discussion of the other known fragments now in Berlin and Avignon and a reconstruction of the whole tomb chapel Every fragment is fully illustrated in colour doing full justice to an artist who has been described as antiquity s equivalent of Michelangelo
