Politics and Welfare in Birmingham, 1900-1975 Edward Shannon LaMonte,1995-02-28 This well written volume explores the relationships between politics and welfare programs for low income residents in Birmingham during four periods in the twentieth century 1900 1917 the formative period of city building when welfare was predominantly a responsibility of the private sector 1928 1941 when the Great Depression devastated the local economy and federal intervention became the principal means of meeting human need the mid 1950s when the lasting impacts of the New Deal could be assessed and when matters of race relations became increasingly significant 1962 1975 when an intense period of local government reform the Civil Rights movement federal intervention in the form of the War on Poverty and increasing demands for citizen participation all reinforced one another From the time of its founding in 1871 Birmingham has had a biracial population so the theme of race relations runs naturally throughout the narrative LaMonte pays particular attention to those efforts to achieve a more harmonious biracial community including the failed effort to establish an Urban League in the 1940s the progressive activities of the Community Chest s Interracial Division in the 1950s which were abruptly terminated and the dramatic events of the Civil Rights Movement in the 1960s when local events were elevated to international significance

Politics and Society in the South Earl Black,Merle Black,1987 This wide ranging examination of the newest South is a leading candidate to replace the classic work by V O Key now two generations old Politics and Society in the South is a systematic interpretation of the most important national and state tendencies in southern politics since 1920 The authors begin by describing the salient features of the old southern politics against which they then depict the emergence of the new South the changing composition of the population the growth of industry and cities economic diversification and the rise of an urban middle class A major component of the greatest southern transformation since the Civil War is the altered status of blacks from a disfranchised underclass to a franchised citizenry a change that the authors discuss in all its ramifications The decline of the Democratic Party is charted and related to the rise of the black vote and the transitional attitudes of white southerners Finally regional trends in presidential senatorial and gubernatorial politics are set forth and the overall political directions that are still reshaping southern politics and creating a two party system for the first time are defined The authors contend that notable improvements in race relations notwithstanding the central tendencies in southern politics are primarily established by the values beliefs and objectives of the expanding white urban middle class This is the crucible for a more competitive two party politics that is emerging in the South Directory of the American Left ,1988
