It features a large, dark silhouette of a Native American figure in the center, holding a bow in one hand and an arrow pointing downwards in the other. To the left of the figure are two vertical, dark, teardrop-shaped objects, possibly spears or arrows. To the right, a dark silhouette of a coyote or wolf is shown in profile, facing right. The background is divided into two main color sections: a reddish-brown area on the left and a yellowish-orange area on the right, suggesting a sunset or sunrise. The title text is overlaid on the reddish-brown section.

typifies well the mental development insight and beauty of speech of the Indian tribes along the Pacific Coast from those of Alaska in the far away Northland with half of life spent in actual darkness and more than half in the struggle for existence against the cold and the storms loosed by fatal curiosity from the bear's bag of bitter icy winds to the exquisite imagery of the Zunis and other desert tribes on their sunny plains in the Southland It was in the night shine of this southern land with its clear dry air and brilliant stars that the Indians

Myths and Legends of California and the Old Southwest Katharine Berry Judson, 2018-03-04 This looks at some of the old tales and stories spread about the Southwest during the 19th century drawing upon Native legends and mythology From the preface In the beginning of the New making the ancient fathers lived successively in four caves in the Four fold containing earth The first was of sooty blackness black as a chimney at night time the second dark as the night in the stormy season the third like a valley in starlight the fourth with a light like the dawning Then they came up in the night shine into the World of Knowing and Seeing So runs the Zuni myth and it typifies well the mental development insight and beauty of speech of the Indian tribes along the Pacific Coast from those of Alaska in the far away Northland with half of life spent in actual darkness and more than half in the struggle for existence against the cold and the storms loosed by fatal curiosity from the bear's bag of bitter icy winds to the exquisite imagery of the Zunis and other desert tribes on their sunny plains in the Southland It was in the night shine of this southern land with its clear dry air and brilliant stars that the Indians looking up at the heavens above them told the story of the bag of stars of Utset the First Mother who gave to the scarab beetle when the floods came the bag of Star People sending him first into the world above It was a long climb to the world above and the tired little fellow once safe sat down by the sack After a while he cut a tiny hole in the bag just to see what was in it but the Star People flew out and filled the heavens everywhere Yet he saved a few stars by grasping the neck of the sack and sat there frightened and sad when Utset the First Mother asked what he had done with the beautiful Star People The Sky father himself in those early years of the New making spread out his hand with the palm downward and into all the wrinkles of his hand set the semblance of shining yellow corn grains gleaming like sparks of fire in the dark of the early World dawn See said Sky father to Earth mother our children shall be guided by these when the Sun father is not near and thy mountain terraces are as darkness itself Then shall our children be guided by light So Sky father created the stars Then he said And even as these grains gleam upward from the water so shall seed grain like them spring up from the earth when touched by water to nourish our children And he created
