Narrative Of An Expedition To The Zambesi:

Narrative of an Expedition to the Zambesi and its Tributaries David Livingstone, Charles Livingstone, 2011-05-19
The success of the Victorian explorer and missionary David Livingstone's first book Missionary Travels 1857 led to his receiving government funding in 1858 for an expedition up the Zambezi River. The trip was expected to last two years and was intended to further commercial and scientific as well as missionary aims. However, owing to internal disagreements, illness including the death of Livingstone's wife, drought, and tribal warfare, the explorers' mission took six and a half years and achieved little apart from collecting plant and geological specimens. The upper reaches of the Zambesi proved unnavigable owing to rapids and waterfalls, and the expedition was recalled. This account, published in 1865 by Livingstone, 1813-1873, and his younger brother Charles, who had accompanied him, was in part an attempt to excuse the problems which had beset the expedition and restore Livingstone's reputation in order to gain backing for further ventures. Narrative of an Expedition to the Zambezi and Its Tributaries, and of the Discovery of the Lakes Shirwa and Nyassa, (1858-1864) David Livingstone, Charles Livingstone, 1865. Narrative of an Expedition to the Zambesi and Its Tributaries, and of the Discovery of the Lakes Shirwa and Nyassa 1858-64 David Livingstone, Charles Livingstone, 1865. Narrative of an Expedition to the Zambesi and Its Tributaries Livingstone, 1865. Excerpt from Narrative of an Expedition to the Zambesi and Its Tributaries And of the Discovery of the Lakes Shirwa and Nyassa 1858-1864. But the main object of the Portuguese Government is not geographical. It is to bolster up that pretense to power which has been the only obstacle to the establishment of lawful commerce and friendly relations with the native inhabitants of Eastern Africa. The following work contains abundant confirmation of all that was advanced by me at the Bath meeting of the British Association, and I may here add that it is this unwarranted assumption of power over 1360 miles of coast from English River to Cape Delgado where the Portuguese have in fact little real authority which perpetuates the barbarism of the inhabitants. The Portuguese interdict all foreign commerce except at a very few points where they have established custom houses, and even at these by an exaggerated and obstructive tariff and differential duties they completely shut out the natives from any trade except that in slaves.
