

Paragraph Rules

1. When writing a story, research paper, essay, letter or any other type of writing, start a new paragraph when...
  - the setting changes
  - a new character speaks, or comes along
  - a new idea is introduced
  - time moves forward or backward
  - a new event happens
  - the narrator changes
  - the topic changes, or a new subtopic
2. Be sure the paragraph focuses on one idea and state that idea in a topic sentence.
3. Place the topic sentence effectively within the paragraph. Let the purpose of the paragraph and the details to support it, guide the writing.
4. Let the details illustrate or clarify the idea expressed the topic sentence.
5. Make the relationship between the details and the main idea clear to the reader.
6. Be sure the multiple paragraphs in the story are related, fit together well, and explain the main idea collectively.
