Multicultural Experiences Multicultural Theories:

Multicultural Experiences, Multicultural Theories Mary Frances Rogers, George Ritzer, 1996 This reader in multicultural social theory provides selections from a wide range of multicultural theorists that include Feminist Queer Afrocentric Native American Chicana and Asian American perspectives. Rogers begins with an Introduction then breaks the 38 readings into seven thematic sections beginning each section with an essay emphasizing the main points of the readings and helping to place those points into a broader theoretical context. Through the readings students come to see that intergroup differences are products of the societies and times in which they exist and that often those differences can often reveal not only cultural divergence but cultural similarities as well. The book goes beyond the usual class race gender approach found in social theory texts. It shows the similarities as well as the dissimilarities between multicultural and other social theorists highlighting the idea that theory though diverse and eclectic involves individuals of all intellectual and cultural bents commonly turning their consciousness to interpretation and understanding. The book uses the concept of dignity to integrate the cultural and theoretical concerns addressed in the readings

This collection, pertinent for teacher preparation, undergraduate and graduate seminars and reading discussion groups, focuses on new and experienced teachers who confront myths who negotiate their own identities as well as identity politics in the classroom and who design new projects use new tools and apply new practices. The chapters highlight the need to change how teachers respond to student work, manage classroom interactions, form collaborative partnerships, construct service learning projects and conduct research
