Multinationals And European Integration Trade Investment And Regional Development:

Multinationals and European Integration Nicholas A. Phelps, 2013-10-18 This book examines the role of the multinational firms in processes of European integration It is primarily concerned with the implications of market integration and industrial restructuring for peripheral European regions Nicholas Phelps argues that because of the complex relationship between competition and economies of scale the persistence of market segmentation and because of the embeddedness of multinational investment in established production locations there is considerable inertia in the existing trade and investment patterns of multinationals in the EU This argument is explored empirically in relation to multinationals operating in Wales This study suggests that processes of restructuring accompanying market integration are slow to take effect and based on a diversity of motives

Multinational Enterprises, Innovative Strategies and Systems of Innovation John Cantwell, José Molero, 2003-01-01 This volume explores the extent to which multinational enterprises MNEs are decentralizing the creation of new technological capabilities to various countries The book contends that technological strategies and innovation activities undertaken by firms are a critical part of the increasing internationalization of economic activity and that MNEs are the main actors for these changes It goes on to explain that MNEs must now effectively manage new technological assets in order to cope with the extensive changes in the nature of international competition

Industrial Policy in Europe Keith Cowling, 2003-09-02 After a decade or more of privatisation and deregulation there is a growing consensus that government can have a positive role in promoting industrial development This book explores a variety of ways in which this might be made to happen A common theme is the need for participation at the appropriate level too often industrial policy has been hampered by overcentralised decision making Containing contributions by some of Europe's leading industrial economists Industrial Policy for Europe covers subjects from small business to macroeconomics
