science fiction Seventeen year old Jane Webb Loudon took up the theme of reanimation moved it three hundred years into the future and applied it to Cheops an ancient Egyptian mummy Unlike Shelley s horrifying death dealing monster this revivified creature bears the wisdom of the ages and is eager to share his insights with humanity Cheops boards a hot air balloon and travels to 22nd century England where he sets about remedying the ills of a corrupt government In recounting Cheops attempts to put the futuristic society to rights the young author offers a fascinating portrait of the preoccupations of her own era as well as some remarkably prescient predictions of technological advances The Mummy envisions a world in

In the year 2126 England enjoyed peace and tranquillity under the absolute dominion of a female sovereign Numerous changes had taken place for some centuries in the political state of the country and several forms of government had been successively adopted and destroyed till as is generally the case after violent revolutions they all settled down into an absolute monarchy In the meantime the religion of the country had been mutable as its government and in the end by adopting Catholicism it seemed to have arrived at nearly the same result despotism in the state indeed naturally produces despotism in religion the implicit faith and passive obedience required in the one case being the best of all possible prepartatives for the absolute submission of both mind and body necessary in the other In former times England had been blessed with a mixed government and a tolerant religion under which the people had enjoyed as much freedom as they perhaps ever can do consistently with their prosperity and happiness It is not in the nature of the human mind however to be contented we must always either hope or fear and things at a distance appear so much more beautiful than they do when we approach them that we always fancy what we have not infinitely superior to any thing we have and neglect enjoyments within our reach to pursue others which like ignes fatui elude our grasp at the very moment when we hope we have attained them
