Monkeys as Perceivers Roger T. Davis, 2014-05-10 Primate Behavior Developments in Field and Laboratory Research Volume 3 Monkeys as Perceivers illustrates some general procedures for studying nonverbal perceiving in monkeys This book takes into account the environment that was present when the monkeys were evolving their basic patterns of behavior in order to describe monkeys as perceivers The topics include the general requirements for a description of nonverbal perception inferences about attention and complex conflicting cues of space The interpretation of spatial discontiguity alternative ways to measure detour performance and methodological problems in specifying form are also described This publication likewise covers the confusion errors in short term memory and color perception This volume is suitable for biologists and researchers interested in monkeys as perceivers Learning and the Infant Mind Amanda Woodward, Amy Needham, 2008-09-08 When asking how cognition comes to take its mature form learning seems to be an obvious factor to consider However until quite recently there has been very little contact between investigations of how infants learn and what infants know For example on the one hand research efforts focused on infants foundational conceptual knowledge what they know about the physical permanence of objects causal relations and human intentions often do not consider how learning may contribute to the structure of this knowledge On the other hand research efforts focused on infants perceptual and motor learning how they extract information from the environment tune their behavior patterns according to this information and generalize learning to new situations often do not consider the potential impacts of these perceptual and learning mechanisms the structure of conceptual knowledge Although each of these research efforts has made significant progress this research has done little to narrow the divide between the disparate traditions of learning and knowledge The chapters in this book document for the first time the insights that emerge when researchers who come from diverse domains and use different approaches make a genuine attempt to bridge this divide The authors consider both infants knowledge across domains including knowledge of objects physical relations between objects categories people and language and learning broadly construed bringing to bear direct laboratory manipulations of learning and more general considerations of the relations between experience and knowledge These authors have begun to consider whether and how the products of learning go beyond the input in several senses As a result several converging trends emerge across Whese diverse points of view These authors have begun to investigate whether infants derive relatively abstract representations from experience as well as the extent to which infants generalize information learned in one context to a new context They have also begun to investigate the extent to which learning is generative constraining and informing subsequent learning Hearst's
