Globalization, Democratization and Multilateralism Stephen Gill, 2016-07-27 Globalization involves structural changes in forms of state society and culture ecology and political economy and in ethics and expectations In this collection globalization and multilateralism are linked to questions of epistemology ontology and strategy Epistemology entails critical questioning of the nature of knowledge and its foundations Ontology concerns the significant factors in global political economy Strategy involves how to move world affairs from its present condition towards normative goals enunciated in the MUNS programme so as to promote collective ability to channel structural change in a more democratic direction internationalization represented by the market and forces of democratization rooted in civil society Each of these two dynamics has developed unevenly in modern history giving rise to contradictions particularly between capitalist internationalization and political democratization The challenges to the state system the basic framework of the modern international order posed by the dialectic of these two dynamics form the main themes in this examination of global transformation This collaborative effort of 20 scholars from around the world represents the first truly comprehensive critical reflection on the contemporary global transformation
