Kevin Williams has authored an account of foreign correspondence and international journalism that is the most comprehensively sourced, inclusive, contextualized, timely and critical in its field. At last we have an account that acknowledges that the largest employers of foreign correspondents for nearly two hundred years have been and continue to be the news agencies that the occupation is rooted in a history of imperialism, post colonialism and commercialization whose vestiges today are all too apparent. The impacts of so-called new media on the amount, range and quality of international news while significant are less dramatic and less positive than commonly supposed. Oliver Boyd Barrett, Bowling Green State University, Ohio. What is the future of the foreign correspondent? Is there one? Tracing the historical development of international reporting, Kevin Williams examines the organizational structures, occupational culture and information environment in which it is practiced to explore the argument that foreign correspondence is becoming extinct in the globalized world. Mapping the institutional, political, economic, cultural and historical context within which news is gathered across borders, this book reveals how foreign correspondents are adapting to new global and commercial realities in how they gather, adapt and disseminate news. Lucid and engaging, the book expertly probes three global models of reporting: Anglo-American, European and the developing world, to lay bare the forces of technology, commercial constraint and globalization that are changing how journalism is practiced and understood. Essential reading for students of journalism, this is a timely and thought-provoking book for anyone who wishes to fully grasp the core issues of journalism and reporting in a global
