

FOUR IMPORTANT INSIGHTS ABOUT MEDIA MESSAGES

1

All media messages are constructed. Media are made by people who make choices about content, techniques, and how messages are shared. The perspectives, values, and culture of media makers are embedded in the media they create, sometimes purposefully and sometimes unconsciously.

2

People use their individual skills, beliefs, and experiences to construct their own meanings of media messages. People can (and often do) interpret the same message differently without anyone being wrong.

3

Media and media messages can influence beliefs, attitudes, values, behaviors, and the democratic process. Understanding what the impact might be, and on whom, is at the core of media literacy.

4

Different forms of media have different characteristics, strengths, and a unique "language" of construction. For example, traditional essay writing involves vocabulary like "paragraphs," "topic sentences," and "subtitles," whereas writing a blog involves all of those and also vocabulary such as "wallpaper/theme," "widgets," "plug-ins," "tags," "hyper-links," "comment protocols," and the like.

Implications for Teaching: We prompt students to look for WHAT the substance, source, and significance of a bias might be rather than instructing them to ask IF there is a bias in a particular message (since all media messages include biases).

Implications for Teaching: We focus on the quality or validity of evidence and reasoning rather than expecting all students to arrive at a particular conclusion.

Implications for Teaching: We need to model for students the importance of taking both print and nonprint sources seriously and assign both. We also need to help students examine which messages media repeat most often and why and offer counter-narratives by routinely integrating into instruction media from diverse sources and points of view.

Implications for Teaching: Students can't analyze what they don't notice, and they rarely notice things for which they have no language. To provide common ground for discussions and production, introduce medium-specific communication techniques and teach students to use medium-specific vocabulary when they analyze and create.

In the simplest of terms, leadership is about influencing people to achieve an objective that is important to the leader, the group and the organization. It is the human element leading, motivating and inspiring, particularly during times of crisis, chaos and complexity. When directives, policy statements and communiques have little effect on cold, exhausted and stressed followers, strong leadership encourages subordinates to go beyond the obligation to obey and commit to the mission in a way that maximizes their potential. The Military Leadership Handbook is a concise and complete manual that identifies, describes and explains all those concepts, components and ideas that deal with or directly relate to military leadership. The book is a comprehensive compendium that focuses on among other subjects, cohesion, command, cultural intelligence, discipline, fear and trust. This applied manual provides invaluable assistance to anyone who wishes to acquire a better understanding of both the theory and application of military leadership.
