Inness, 2015-08-31 At supermarkets across the nation customers waiting in line mostly female flip through magazines displayed at the checkout stand What we find on those magazine racks are countless images of food and in particular women moms preparing lunch for the team college roommates baking together working women whipping up a meal in under an hour dieters happy to find a lowfat ice cream that tastes great In everything from billboards and product packaging to cooking shows movies and even sex guides food has a presence that conveys powerful gender coded messages that shape our society Kitchen Culture in America is a collection of essays that examine how women s roles have been shaped by the principles and practice of consuming and preparing food Exploring popular representations of food and gender in American society from 1895 to 1970 these essays argue that kitchen culture accomplishes more than just passing down cooking skills and well loved recipes from generation to generation Kitchen culture instructs women about how to behave like correctly gendered beings One chapter reveals how juvenile cookbooks a popular genre for over a century have taught boys and girls not only the basics of cooking but also the fine distinctions between their expected roles as grown men and women Several essays illuminate the ways in which food manufacturers have used gender imagery to define women first and foremost as consumers Other essays informed by current debates in the field of material culture investigate how certain commodities like candy which in the early twentieth century was advertised primarily as a feminine pleasure have been culturally constructed The book also takes a look at the complex relationships among food gender class and race or ethnicity as represented for example in the popular Southern black Mammy figure In all of the essays Kitchen Culture in America seeks to show how food serves as a marker of identity in American society The North Carolina Teacher ,1928 The Publishers Weekly ,1920 The Elementary School Teacher and the Course of Study ,1921 The American Hebrew & Jewish Messenger ,1920 The Elementary School Journal ,1921 The Fannie Farmer Junior Cook Book.
