Theories of Dependent Foreign Policy and the Case of Ecuador in the 1980s Jeanne A. K. Hey, 1995 How do economic weakness and dependence influence foreign policy decisions and behavior in third world countries Theories in Dependent Foreign Policy examines six foreign policy theories compliance consensus counterdependence realism leader preferences and domestic politics and each is applied to a series of case studies of Ecuador's foreign policy during the 1980s under two regimes Osvaldo Hurtado 1981-1984 and his successor Leon Febres Cordero 1984-1988 Hey shows that Ecuador during this period represented the third world in many ways It was a new democracy having just emerged from years of military rule extremely indebted to the West and dependent on primary product export economy that relied heavily on importers especially the United States Jeanne Hey finds that some of the most popular and enduring theories in western research such as realism and compliance poorly account for Ecuadorian foreign policy She explains that poor countries like Ecuador have substantial foreign policy latitude in the diplomatic area Drawing on archival research and interviews with policy makers including Presidents Hurtado and Febres Cordero Dr Hey convincingly argues that many of the traditional foreign policy theories do not fit dependent states and inadequately account for the complexity of foreign policy in the third world The Journal of Developing Areas ,1993 A New World Order? David A. Smith,Jozsef Borocz,1995-05-23 The closing years of the 20th century will be remembered as a time of tumultuous change The various essays are attempts to understand the changes and ground them in the context of the logic of the contemporary world system The essays are divided into two main themes structural transformations and regional ramifications of global transformations East Asia the Pacific Rim European periphery and the Middle East are all examined to determine if fundamental changes are occurring Scholars and upper level and graduate students of economic history developmental economics regional economics international economics and political economy will find provocative contrasts and insights in this collection of essays presented at the 18th annual Political Economy of the World System Conference Handbook of Latin American Studies ,1992 The Fertility Transition in Latin America José Miguel Guzmán,1996 The 1960s saw the start of sustained process of declining fertility in Latin America based on radical change in the reproductive patterns of families There has been a clear trend towards more or less generalized behaviour of regulating fertility coincident with a rise in the availability and the use of methods of contraception There are however important differences between and within the countries of the region which are analysed in full in this volume Whether one stratifies by demographic factors place of residence education or social status from the beginning of the transition it seems that a variety of reproductive patterns were in existence This volume studies the process of transition from high to low fertility as it has occurred and is occurring in Latin America It provides a general comparative overview of transition in the region in which the link between socio economic development and declining fertility is explored There are sections on the process through which the transition occurs social determinants of fertility change and the consequences of fertility decline Large data sets from census and survey results for many countries and points in time are presented in over 150 tables and figures The comparative analyses are complemented by five individual country studies in the final section

The Repressed Economy Deepak Lal,1993 In this outstanding collection of essays on economic liberalization Deepak Lal one of the world s leading development economists questions why many developing countries have followed policies which have retarded both growth and equity before discussing why and how these policies have come to be reversed The Repressed Economy brings together Professor Lal s most important work on economies that function unsatisfactorily because of government policies that distort the working of the free market He explains both why governments create these distortions and when if at all they are likely to heed the technocratic advice of the economist to eliminate or reduce them The theme of the repressed economy is explored throughout these essays which include applied studies of developing economies in Latin America the Philippines Kenya Brazil India and China The role of ideas interests and ideology are explored as is the importance of differences in initial resources Simple political economy models are developed to explain the actions of the governments concerned An intellectual biography is included which outlines how Professor Lal s practical experience in the Third World led him to become a neo liberal development economist
