development and concludes by presenting a forecast of the future trends of financial and sustainable development on the African continent in general and sub Saharan Africa in particular. The chapters are authored by prominent scholars and researchers in the field of finance and banking applied econometrics and development economics with a deep understanding and knowledge of financial development and the local situations in African countries. This book provides crucial reference material for academics, researchers, policymakers and students of all levels and is a must read for anyone wishing to understand the nature of finance and sustainable development in Africa in relation to the rest of the world. It covers African countries but with more emphasis on the sub Saharan African region where the financial systems in many of the countries are still relatively underdeveloped. External Finance and Adjustment Karel Jansen, Rob Vos, 1997-12-13. This book studies the impact of different sources of external finance on growth and development in different country contexts. An important finding of the study is that success or failure in the productive use of external and domestic financial resources cannot be explained on the basis of single factors such as external shocks or bad versus sound policies. Rather they are outcomes of complex interactions between changes in exogenous factors such as fluctuations in external finance and trade shocks, existing economic structures and the responses to shocks by domestic public and private sector agents. This finding also implies that there are no recipes in economic policy making which are generally applicable; the best policy has to be designed specifically for each country.
