Bodies Aleksander Pluskowski, 2007 An important human trait is our inclination to develop complex relationships with numerous other species. In the great majority of cases, however, these mutualistic relationships involve a pair of species whose co-evolution has been achieved through behavioural adaptation, driving positive selection pressures. Humans go a step further opportunistically and it sometimes seems almost arbitrarily elaborating relationships with many other species, whether through domestication, pet-keeping, taming for menageries, deifying, pest control, conserving iconic species or recruiting as mascots. When we consider medieval attitudes to animals, we are tackling a fundamentally human and distinctly idiosyncratic behavioural trait. The sixteen papers presented here investigate animals from zoological, anthropological, artistic and economic perspectives within the context of the medieval world. Animal Servants of Man Joseph J.
