What was a garden in medieval and early modern British culture and how was it imagined How did it change as Europe opened up to the wider world from the 16th century onwards In a series of fresh approaches to these questions the contributors offer chapters that identify and discuss newly discovered pre modern garden spaces in archaeology and archival sources recognize a gendered language of the garden in fictional descriptions fictional here being taken to mean any written text regardless of its purpose and offer new analysis of the uses to which gardens real and imagined might be put Chapters investigate the definitions forms and functions of physical gardens explore how the material space of the garden was gendered as a secluded space for women and as a place of recreation examine the centrality of garden imagery in medieval Christian culture and trace the development of garden motifs in the literary and artistic imagination to convey the sense of enclosure transformation and release The book uniquely underlines the current environmental turn in the humanities and increasingly recognizes the value of exploring human interaction with the landscapes of the past as a route to health and well being in the present Designs Upon the Land Oliver Hamilton Creighton,2009

The phrase designed landscape is generally associated with the great parks and gardens of the post medieval period with grand country houses surrounded by parkland such as Chatsworth and Longleat However recent research has made it clear that its origins lie much further back than that in the middle ages and numerous examples have been identified This book offers the first full length survey of designed medieval landscapes not just the settings for castles but for palaces manor houses and monastic institutions Gardens and pleasure grounds gave their owners sensory enjoyment lakes ponds and walkways created routes of approach that displayed residences to best effect deer parks were stunning backdrops and venues for aristocratic enjoyment and peacocks swans rabbits and doves were some of the many species which lent these landscapes their elite appearance Richly illustrated with plans maps and photographs of key sites showing what can still be seen today Oliver H Creighton is Associate Professor in Archaeology University of Exeter
